Prez Column

Spirits were high on show day as volunteers and performers spend the day setting up for our annual fund raiser at the Iroquois Amphitheater. This year Mother Nature was competing against us. More than 10 inches of rain fell on Louisville throughout the day and evening. Approximately 250 people came out to see the show and our performers did their best to give them their monies worth. Half way through the show the worst happened when thunder and lightning filled the sky and put an end to this years show. As I am writing this column we have not seen the final report which shows the profit and loss statement. It is hopeful that we didn't lose a great deal. In all the years we have been producing this annual show I can't ever remember the club losing money. Keep in mind that it had always been a possibility. We will keep you posted on the outcome.

All the performers and volunteers worked hard to make this years show a success but sometimes it just isn't in the cards. Very special thanks go to all who played a part this year.

Next year Mac King is scheduled to be our headliner. There is no doubt that if we pull together, promote and work on ticket sales well in advance we will pack the house for another sell out.

Magically, Jerry

MEMBERS IN THE NEWS:

Club secretary, Tom Crecelius, returned to the 1781 time period again this year in Shelby County performing as "The Astounding Thomas, Colonial Conjuror" during the four day event. Tom gave six presentations on Thursday, six presentations on Friday, two on Saturday and two on Sunday, September 14-17. New routines dealing with the early frontier times were developed and presented to the crowd. This marked the sixth year that The Astounding Thomas returned to Shelbyville and the Long Run Massacre.

Mike Raymer performed 2 hours of walk-around for Macy's Departments Stores then performed a half hour children's show at the Americana Festival on Saturday, September 16, 2006. Also performing at the Americana Festival was Terry "Balloon Man" Kelly
